US DIPLOMATIC BLITZ SOUGHT TO REDUCE RISKS OF CONFLICT

Pressure mounts on Israel over casualties as ceasefire calls rebuffed

GAZA: Having rebuffed calls for a ceasefire, Israel was set to come under sustained pressure on Monday to avoid civilian casualties during its assault on Gaza, while a U.S. diplomatic blitz in the region sought to reduce risks of the conflict escalating, Reuters reported.

U.S. Secretary of State Antony Blinken was due to meet with Turkey's foreign minister in Ankara on Monday, hours after hundreds of people at a pro-Palestinian protest tried to storm an air base that houses U.S. troops in southern Turkey. Blinken on Sunday made an unannounced visit to the West Bank to meet with Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas, who joined international calls for an immediate ceasefire. But after Blinken repeated U.S. concerns that a ceasefire could aid Hamas, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu ruled that out unless hostages held by Hamas were released.

Israel's military said on Sunday it had surrounded the Gaza City. Palestinian news agency Wafa had reported "unprecedented bombardment" from Israel, while telegrams provider Paltel reported another cutoff of communications and internet services. A spokesman for Israel's military told CNN late on Sunday that Gaza was halted for several hours for two days in a row to allow civilians safe passage to the south of the narrow coastal strip.

Concurs said there was access to water and humanitarian goods in the south of Gaza, but Hamas was impeding convoys by firing on them. Reuters could not immediately verify his account. U.S. CIA Director William Burns was also set to visit Israel on Monday to discuss the war and intelligence with senior officials, the New York Times reported. Burns also will make stops in other Middle East countries to discuss the Gaza situation, the Times quoted an unnamed U.S. official as saying.

The CIA did not respond to Reuters' request for comment. U.S. Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin spoke with Israeli defense minister Yoav Gallant on Sunday and "reiterated his ironclad commitment to Israel's right to defend itself and emphasized the importance of both protecting civilians and delivering humanitarian assistance," the Pentagon said. Austin "reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to deter any state or non-state actor seeking to escalate this conflict." U.S. Vice President Kamala Harris will call foreign leaders later on Monday to discuss the conflict and advance the administration's efforts to increase the flow of humanitarian assistance to civilians in Gaza. 5.8-magnitude earthquake jolts western Nepal

KATHMANDU: A 5.8-magnitude earthquake on Monday struck Jajarkot and surrounding areas in western Nepal, where a strong tremor on Friday killed 153 people. There was no immediate report of any casualties or damage. Jajarkot and surrounding areas were again hit by a major earthquake at 4:31 p.m. (local time), according to the National Seismological Center. The intensity of the earthquake was measured at 5.8 and its epicentre was at Ramidanda of Jajarkot, it said. The tremor, which was also felt in Kathmandu, triggered panic among people. This was followed by another 4.5-magnitude earthquake at 4.40 p.m., said an official. AGENCIES

KYIV: Ukraine confirmed on Monday that 19 service members were killed by a Russian missile strike in Zaporizhzhia during a military awards ceremony in what President Volodymyr Zelenskyy lamented was a "tragedy that could've been avoided". Defence Minister Rustem Umerov has ordered an investigation into why the 128th Separate Mountain Assault Brigade of Zakarpattia participated in the crowded event Friday honouring troops for Rocket Forces and Artillery Day so close to front lines. The announcement came as officials said Russian drone and missile strikes in Odesa wounded eight people and damaged an art museum that is part of a UNESCO World Heritage site, and satellite photos showed damage done by a Ukrainian missile strike to a Russian naval ship. Odesa's National Art Museum said seven exhibitions, most featuring the work of contemporary Ukrainian artists, were damaged by a strike that left a large crater outside the museum celebrating its 124th anniversary. Photos and video showed shattered windows, doors, and some paintings lying on the floor amid debris strewn across the galleries. The attack followed reports by the Russian Defense Ministry that Ukrainian cruise missiles aimed at the Zaliv shipyard in Kerch, a city in the east of the Moscow-held Crimean Peninsula, had struck one of its vessels. Satellite photos analyzed by The Associated Press showed damage to a Russian navy corvette moored off Kerch. The satellite pictures Sunday from Planet Labs PBC show what appear to be a firefighting vessel, as well as booms in the water to stop oil leaks, from the damaged ship. What appeared to be burn marks can be seen on the vessel, which was still afloat. Those marks were not visible on other satellite images captured of the vessel at port. The measurements of the vessel and its shape correspond with a Karakurt-class corvette. In Russian, "karakurt" means "Black Widow spider". Those vessels are designed to carry Kalibr cruise missiles, the same kind of missiles that Moscow has used repeatedly against Ukrainian targets since launching the all-out war on Kyiv in February 2022. The Russian Defence Ministry said late Saturday that Ukrainian forces fired 15 cruise missiles at the Zaliv shipyard in Kerch, with at least two striking a ship and the shipyard. Lt Gen Mykola Oleshchuk, the commander of Ukraine's air force, later wrote in an online message that he believed the strike targeted a vessel carrying Kalibrs. He also suggested Kyiv used long-range French Scalp cruise missiles in the attack. AGENCIES

Trump takes stand in New York civil case alleging financial fraud

NEW YORK: Donald Trump began testifying on Monday morning in his civil fraud trial, producing a spectacle of a former president and the leading Republican presidential candidate defending himself against allegations that he dramatically inflated his net worth. His turn on the witness stand, in a case that cuts to the heart of the business brand he spent decades crafting, amounts to a remarkable convergence of his legal troubles and his political ventures. The testimony gives him the opportunity to try to use the witness stand as a campaign platform as he eyes a return to the White House while facing multiple criminal indictments. AGENCIES order." French Parl starts debating bill that would make it easier to deport migrants

President Emmanuel Macron

PARIS: Senators in France were set on Monday to start debating a bill that is intended to toughen the country's immigration law but advocacy organisations have criticised as a threat to the rights of asylum-seekers and other migrants. French Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin said the legislation "is about being firm" on immigration. The bill especially is aimed at "being tougher on foreigners who commit crimes, expelling them all", he said, speaking Sunday night on TV channel France 2. The government said the measure would strengthen and accelerate the process of deporting foreigners who are regarded as "a serious threat to public to undocumented individuals working in specific sectors with labour shortages. "There's a political compromise to be found. What counts is the general interest," Darmanin said. The Senate debate is the first step in what is likely to be a long and difficult legislative journey. The bill already was postponed several times this year due to a lack of support from a parliamentary majority. The upper house of parliament is dominated by conservatives who are opposed to giving legal status to workers who entered France illegally, arguing the move would create a "pull effect" that encourages more migrants to come to France.
