OVER MUTINY THAT CHALLENGED PUTIN'S AUTHORITY IN RUSSIA

Plane crash believed to have killed Prigozhin seen as Kremlin's revenge

The founder of the Wagner military company and six others were reportedly on a private jet

MOSCOW: Russian mercenary chief Yevgeny Prigozhin and some of his top lieutenants were presumed dead in a plane crash — widely seen Thursday as an assassination to avenge a mutiny that challenged President Vladimir Putin's authority.

Russian mercenary chief Yevgeny Prigozhin

The founder of the Wagner military company and six other passengers were on a private jet that crashed Wednesday, soon after taking off from Moscow with a crew of three, according to Russia's civil aviation authority. Rescuers found 10 bodies, and Russian media cited anonymous sources in Wagner who

President Putin breaks silence

MOSCOW: Russian President Vladimir Putin has broken his silence on the plane crash that killed top leaders of the Wagner mercenary group.

Putin expressed condolences for those who were aboard the jet, including mercenary chief Yevgeny Prigozhin. He made the remarks while speaking with the Russian-installed leader of Ukraine's partially occupied Donetsk region, Denis Pushilin, in a televised interview.

A makeshift memorial, Russian state media also have not covered it extensively, instead focusing on the summit and Russia's invasion of Ukraine. Police, meanwhile, cordoned off the field where the plane went down in Kuzhenkino, about 300 kilometers northwest of Moscow, as investigators studied its wreckage. Vehicles took away the bodies. Several Russian social media channels reported that the bodies were burned or disfigured beyond recognition and would need to be identified by DNA.

The reports were picked up by independent Russian media, but the Associated Press was not able to independently confirm them.

Prigozhin supporters claimed on pro-Wagner messaging app channels that the plane was deliberately downed, including suggesting it could have been hit by an air defense missile or targeted by a bomb on board.

Thousands of senior doctors strike again in UK over pay dispute

LONDON: Hospital care across England largely came to a standstill on Thursday as senior doctors launch another 48-hour strike amid an ongoing pay dispute between medics and the British government.

Thousands of hospital doctors say they will only provide emergency care, and the National Health Service warned patients to expect major disruption during the two-day strike.

Thursday's strike is the latest in a series of actions staged by doctors, nurses and other clinical staff in recent months and part of a wave of disruptive industrial action by public sector workers to demand better pay amid the UK's cost-of-living crisis.

Julian Hartley, chief executive of NHS Providers, said the latest walkouts are a "massive headache" for the public health service because they are timed just before the late August three-day public holiday week-

Trump set to surrender in Georgia over election charges

ATLANTA: Donald Trump is set to surrender Thursday to authorities in Georgia on charges that he schemed to overturn the 2020 election in that state, a booking process expected to yield a historic first: a mug shot of a former American president.

Trump's arrival follows a presidential debate featuring his leading rivals for the 2024 Republican nomination, a contest in which he remains the leading candidate despite accelerating legal troubles.

His presence in the state, though likely brief, is expected to swipe the spotlight at least temporarily from his opponents in the aftermath of a debate in which other candidates sought to seize on his absence to elevate their own presidential prospects. The Fulton County prosecution is the fourth criminal case against Trump since March.

BRICS leaders in S Africa calls for countries to work together

South African President Cyril Ramaphosa (centre) delivers the XV BRICS summit declaration AP/PTI

JOHANNESBURG: BRICS leaders on Thursday urged the international community to support countries working towards post pandemic economic recovery and address the high debt levels in some nations.

At the end of the BRICS Summit in South African capital, the grouping released the Johannesburg II Declaration that stressed on G20 -- a larger grouping of world's biggest economies -- playing the role of the premier multilateral forum to seek solutions to global challenges.

The leaders stressed on the importance of encouraging the use of local currencies in international trade and financial transactions, and sought strengthening of correspondent banking networks between the BRICS countries and enabling settlements in the local currencies.

They tasked finance ministers and central bank governors to consider the issue of local currencies, payment instruments and platforms. "We recognise the important role of BRICS countries working together to deal with risks and challenges to the global economy in achieving world economic recovery and sustainable development," it said.

Recognising that BRICS countries produce one-third of the world's food, the leaders reaffirmed the commitment to strengthen agricultural cooperation and promote sustainable agriculture and rural development for enhancing food security.

The leaders were in favour of encouraging further cooperation among BRICS countries to enhance the inter-connectivity of supply chains and payment systems to promote trade and investment flows.

They reiterated commitment to strengthening the BRICS Contingent Reserve Arrangement (CRA). Agencies

Fukushima N-plant begins releasing treated water

OKUMA: The operator of the tsunami-wrecked Fukushima Daiichi nuclear power plant says it has begun releasing its first batch of treated radioactive water into the Pacific Ocean.

In a live video from a control room at the plant Thursday, Tokyo Electric Power Company Holdings showed a staff member turn, marking the beginning of the controversial project that is expected to last for decades. "Seawater pump A activated," the main operator said, confirming the release was underway.
